ENTITY DESIGNATION

ENTITY-000

Title I: The Slumbering Serpent God

Title II: ITHYOS, The World-Sleeper

Provisional Name

The Sleeping Serpent in the Core Recovered Secondary Name: ITHYOS Unauthorized Interpretive Title: The World-Sleeper

Note:

This record was created before the modern use of the word Anomaly. At the time of writing, the world was not considered ready to witness, name, or understand the ENTITY in formal terms.

ENTITY DESCRIPTION

The ENTITY is an impossibly long serpent-form being estimated at approximately 10 kilometers in length. It is believed to sleep within the Earth’s core in a dormant state. Its full body has never been completely observed, and all current measurements remain partial, inferred, or uncertain.

Despite remaining asleep, the ENTITY exerts passive planetary-scale influence. Small physical movement during its sleep is enough to produce magnitude 3 earthquakes across the Earth. These disturbances appear to be involuntary and do not indicate full waking behavior.

The ENTITY is not to be understood as ordinary life, myth, or animal form. It is a presence whose existence alone exceeds common physical explanation.

PRIMARY OBSERVED EFFECTS

1. Seismic Disturbance

Minor movement while the ENTITY remains asleep is sufficient to trigger measurable global tremors. These tremors are not believed to be intentional.

2. Serpentine Submission Response

Any serpent-type organism exposed to the ENTITY's presence, influence, or aura immediately displays submission behavior.

Observed responses include:

- bowing
- paralysis
- collapse
- refusal to advance
- total passivity

No known serpent-form organism has resisted this effect.

3. Human Proximity Vision

Any human approaching too close to the ENTITY's location begins to experience intrusive visions. The most common and consistent report is that the ENTITY is looking directly at them, even while all known physical signs confirm that it remains asleep.

Witnesses repeatedly describe:

- open eyes
- direct awareness
- impossible age
- fixed and deliberate attention

No confirmed case has shown the ENTITY physically awakening during these visions.

4. Mental Collapse

Weak-minded or psychologically unstable individuals frequently suffer immediate mental collapse after exposure to the vision.

Observed outcomes include:

- madness
- screaming fits
- catatonia
- self-destructive behavior
- religious delirium
- permanent psychological fracture

5. The Scribbling Phase

Following exposure, subjects often enter a compulsive writing state. During this phase, they repeatedly transcribe unknown words, symbols, or script from an unidentified language that does not correspond to any recognized human linguistic system.

The subject continues this scribbling behavior until physical death or total restraint.

6. Terminal Event

Approximately 24 hours after the initial vision, the exposed subject dies of sudden cardiac arrest. This terminal sequence has been recorded as fixed and reliable in all surviving early reports.

EXPOSURE SEQUENCE

The following progression has been observed repeatedly:

1. Approach 2. Vision of the ENTITY watching 3. Mental destabilization 4. Compulsive scribbling 5. Psychological breakdown 6. Sudden cardiac death near the 24-hour mark

INITIAL CONTAINMENT UNDERSTANDING

The ENTITY cannot be contained by conventional architecture, ordinary restraint, or force.

At the time of this first record, containment was understood only in the following terms:

- prevent proximity
- prevent excavation
- suppress knowledge
- preserve dormancy
- avoid any disturbance to its sleep state

The world is not prepared to witness this ENTITY.

It was determined by first deployment authority that public knowledge of the ENTITY's existence would likely result in:

- mass panic
- large-scale faith collapse or fanatic worship
- excavation attempts
- social destabilization
- catastrophic awakening risk

DIRECTIVE

No unapproved descent. No uncontrolled observation. No serpent specimen is to be brought near the lower seal. No witness account is to be released outside sealed command channels. No recovered scribbling is to be circulated without review. No attempt is to be made to interpret the written language without authorization. No action is to be taken that may disturb the ENTITY's dormant state.

ARCHIVE WARNING

This ENTITY is not to be approached as animal, god, relic, or myth.

It is not to be worshipped. It is not to be studied casually. It is not to be awakened.

Its sleep is presently indistinguishable from mercy.

FINAL NOTE

This record is preserved as the first sealed vault document of the A.C.T Facility. It predates formal anomaly doctrine, modern designation systems, and all later containment classification standards.

At the time of writing, there was only one understood duty:

Keep it asleep.
